

NATIVE AMERICAN RESOURCES, LLC

Training and Technical Assistance to Tribal Organizations

CLARA PRATTE, M.S.

Ms. Clara Pratte (Navajo) is currently the National Director of the Office for Native American Affairs within the U.S. Small Business Administration. She was formerly employed with the Navajo Nation Washington Office. In this capacity she addressed topics such as education, training, social services' issues, international affairs, indigenous rights, economic development, and community development.

Ms. Pratte earned a Master's of Science degree from Carnegie Mellon University; she is a recipient of the Heinz Tribal Affairs Fellowship and of the Morris K. Udall Congressional Fellowship. In addition to her degree from Carnegie Mellon, Ms. Pratte is a graduate from the University of Arizona.

Ms. Pratte's several credentials also include her excellent style in the provision of training on topics ranging from tribal health and social services' policy and criminal justice issues.

Personable, experienced and detail-oriented, Ms. Pratte is a much sought-after trainer by tribal organizations.